ALBERTA OIL, COAL PRODUCT BEING PROBED

Interesting Data Develops At Ottawa's Resource Hearing

OTTAWA, Dec. 6.—The Turner Valley oil industry in Alberta would never have been developed if the Dominion government had not guaranteed the province's natural resources. Had not encouraged drillers by allowing their expenditures to be written off on net value? This was stated Wednesday by J. MacGregor Stewart, Halifax, before the Dyson Commission.

Mr. Stewart presented the commission in support of the Dominion's claim that the oil fields and oil lands between 1905 and 1930.

The province received its natural resources in exchange for the subsidy was fixed. The Dyson commission is to determine the amount of additional subsidy that should be given.

RENTALS 100% OF PRODUCT

The Dominion collected in rentals 100% of the total value of oil produced in Alberta between 1905 and 1930. Mr. Stewart declared.

Value of the oil produced in this period was $6,000,000 and the Dominion collected $5,900,000 throughout the province from leases and rentals.

There could not have been much profit, argued C. E. Smith, another Dominion commission member, suggested.

The hard-hitting policy of collection for revenue would have killed the game that laid the golden egg, he said. Still, the Dyson commission agreed one of the industry all that could be squeezed out and the province could not have collected any more revenue.

It was contended by M. M. Porter, Calgary, provincial counsel, that the province could have gained the same amount of revenue by the federal government.

AIDED PROSPECTING

If the Dominion had not imposed the policy of requiring drilling to drilling to be applied to other leases, the Turner Valley field would never have been developed, Mr. Stewart said. In 1921 only one large company was left in the field, and if credits were not allowed, production was not allowed. Production in Turner Valley would have been stopped.

There was considerable discussion as to whether the province was willing to grant additional grants and credits to drillers if they continued to operate in the future, in the name of the oil companies.

PROVISION NOT OBLIGATED

Mr. Stewart contended the province was not obliged. Mr. Porter was of the opinion that the moral, if not legal, Mr. Justice T. M. Tweedie, Calgary, commission member, said, was that the province was both moral and legal obligation on the part of the province.

Mr. Stewart argued that the value of coal lands by Professor J. A. Allan, University of Alberta, on which the province had a claim, was not additional compensation for coal lands alienated.

Providence had set up 174,000 tons a day as a basis for compensation. Alberta claims one-sixth per cent on the coal.

The estimate was away out, the amount of coal suggested could not be matched, and the province, it was an "Alice in Wonderland" estimate, Mr. Stewart declared.

Efforts were being made to complete argument for the Dominion and Alberta this week.

The newest development in Alberta's oil and coal industry is claimed to be several times lighter than the cast-iron type, and weighs about 20 pounds per ton.

Mr. Stewart said the oil and coal

Mysterious Empress

BARONESS ELOISE BONQUET DE WAGNER

Scientist Solves Enigma

"Empress" Drove Victims From Her "Eden"

Of Galapagos Isle Deaths

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—The death of Dr. Friedrich Ritter, German sole-exile, and identification of the mummified victims of the Galapagos islanders, reported to have come from Charles Island, Galapagos archipelago. The castaway tragedy victims were identified by Alfred Rudolph Lorenz of Paris, and Charles

The Baroness Eloise Bonquet de Wagner, self-styled empress of the oil, convoluted island, drove victims from her "Eden" after a year of investigation.

He arrived yesterday at Charles Island and the expedition, which had been organized by a party of Smithsonian Institution members.

Dr. Ritter died from a stroke last Nov. 21 in his Charles Island "Garden of Eden." He had been living there with his wife, Mrs. Ritter, and had lived there with Frau Koenig.

The Baroness and her companion, Robert Phillips, vanished July 5, Capt. Hancock said. Lorrenz, after spending three years in the Galapagos Islands, was brought by the Baroness from Paris to identify the bodies.

He identified the bodies of the general and the native boy in 1932.

The Canadian Society of Commerce told Capt. Hancock that the farmer, after passing low point of the depression, the Canadian farmer recovered during the last 24 months in a statement issued today. It emphasized that the Canadian farmer produced a better process than the stump that struck agriculture such a blow when it was no sign of recovery in 1932.

FROM 1936 ON

Covering the period from 1926 to 1936, the statement said, the Canadian farmer, who was born in 1900, had increased his income by 100% in 1926, the peak year, then tumbled year by year until 1932, when it was over a year ago and 19 percent over the low of 1932.

More recently, the statement explained, is taken to cover the net return to the farmer from raising cattle, livestock, poultry, eggs, fruits, vegetables and miscellaneous products.

TAKES IN MORE

It is noted that the farmer has taken in more money since 1931. He may bear 1931 totals before this is over.

The apparent rise has taken place in purchasing power during the last 12 months, the statement said, and it is over a year ago and 19 percent over the low of 1932.

More recently, the statement explained, is taken to cover the net return to the farmer from raising cattle, livestock, poultry, eggs, fruits, vegetables and miscellaneous products.

TEACHER, CAN OF GAS, MATCH, BAD BURNS

CHEEMLAN, Sask., Dec. 6.—Mrs. Nellie Horner, mother of Cyril, son, and daughter, Mrs. N. N. Horner, former M.L.A. for this constituency, was severely burned about her hands and face.

Miss Horner had gone to the station to get a can of jam when she picked up a match by mistake. It exploded from the match she had in her hand and the burning liquid from the match spilled on her clothing and ignited.

To extinguish the burning she carried the burning can outside, despite the burning which searched the house for matches. Medical assistance was called.

Government Will Pay Grain Bounty

REGINA, Dec. 6.—The government is offering a premium of ten cents a bushel on Nov. 1, to be distributed in southern areas of the province where available in all three prairie provinces, a quantity limit. A premium of 15 cents on feed oats will be paid.

Caruso's Son Facing Prison

ROME, Dec. 6.—The supreme court decided today that if Enrico Caruso, the son of the late tenor, returns from New York to his native Italy, he must face the 2½ years he was sentenced to prison for tax evasion.

He was given a three-year sentence for tax evasion, imposed upon him for a motor road alteration from $100 up—and Radio-Record Compania from $186,000 up.

PRIVATE MONEY CONTROL
MUST GO

Friend Journal is frankly displeased with Mr. W. R. Howson, Alberta Liberal leader, with Mr. G. G. McGeer of Vancouver, with the Liberal convention that was held at Calgary last week, with all who had to do with that gathering, and all who share the view there expressed or the resolutions there approved.

In particular of course it is displeased with what these gentlemen had to say, and with what the convention did, in relation to monetary policy. This, it informs them quite reprovingly, is a subject they had no business to discuss.
Since it is a matter which can only be decided at Ottawa, the responsibility was no place there to mention it. That the convention happened to be called to discuss both provincial and federal questions notwithstanding.

Apparently unable at the moment to think of anything it might profitably say on behalf of the present monetary system which it approves and defends, the Journal informs its readers that nothing said or done at the convention can be considered as being authoritative or having bearing on what is likely to happen.
Right Hon. Mackenzie King, it says, does not agree with what Mr. Howson and Mr. McGeer are saying; therefore these are unauthorized opinions, and the Journal declines to carry them to carry them into law and practice.

Obviously the Journal thinks its readers do not read Hansard. For their benefit, may there be reproduced again a paragraph from the speech delivered by Mr. King in the House of Commons in which the preparation that the Central Bank of Canada should be Government owned and controlled:

"Once a nation parts with the control of its currency and credit, it matters not who makes the nation's laws. Once only in control will wreck the nation. Once only in control of the means of currency and credit is it sacred and conspicuous responsibility, all talk of the sovereignty of parliament and of democracy is idle and futile."

There is no place in the same sentence with which the sentence quoted would fit
all the leadership-authority required by Mr.
Howson, Mr. McGeer or anyone else to proclaim that government-ownership of the Central Bank and control of currency and credit by the public authorities in the public interest is part and parcel of the policy of the Liberal party of Canada.

Still earlier, speaking in parliament in February of 1933, Mr. King said:

"The Liberal party believes that credit is a public master, not of interest to bankers only, but of interest to the average citizen. It stands for the immediate establishment of a properly constituted national bank to perform the functions of rediscount and the control of currency issue, considered in terms of public need. It stands for the immediate determination of the scope of currency in relation to the economic, social and industrial requirements of the Canadian people, and also to deal with the problems of international commerce and exchange."

Nothing that Mr. Howson or Mr. McGeer have said is a平原 declaration that this is the control of currency and credit must be taken out of private hands and exercised by authority of parliament through the agency of a government-owned central bank. Only by definitely, definitely, definitely, unequivocally widely-known declarations on the part of Mr.
King could the Journal dare a平原 declaration that monetary reform along these definitely drawn lines is the policy and purpose of the Liberal party. Only by such definite declarations is there any possibility of doubt.

The Journal is a newspaper owned and controlled by interests centred in eastern Canada.
It is published in Edmonton for two purposes.

One is to extract money from Edmonton pockets to pay dividends to its eastern owners. The other is to purchase the services of the cholera to reform the victims of "sound money" exploration in this community, in order that the explosion may continue.

The Journal should be displeased with the popular belief here that it stands against the interests it exists to serve, is not true.
That it should seek to discredit those who voice
the public demand for a square deal in monetary control is inevitable. That is what it is and it will be supported, that, even in its zeal for a bad cause, it would keep within the limits of known and demonstrable truth.
This evidently it does not intend to do.

A REAL RETIREMENT

Re-bashing civic election controversy, ex-Alderman Farlino says if it were shown that he had got money on the side for putting through the Calgary power agreement he would "retire in public disgrace."

He would, beyond any doubt, but not as a matter of choice. In these sad circumstances the ex-Alderman would be doing time in Ft.
Saskatchewan, far from the clamour of the hustings and the temptations of office.

PRETTY GOOD, FOR AN OFF-YEAR

As they won't let him compete any more for the wheat crown, Mr. Treille of Wembley sent some cash to the International, Show
and we're the reserve champion in that division,
just to keep his hand.

Eight other Alberta men are among the twenty-two prize-winners in the cat division, two of them also farming at Wembley. Sam Kawartha captured seven places, and Manitoba
one. The rest of the world got the remaining five awards.

If the Alberta crop had not been hit by an August frost, Canadians might have swept the boards, and left their competitors only the distinction of having "also ran."

Tricks of Picture-Making and Careers of Stars Revealed

Greta Garbo

Above is an early publicity picture of Greta Garbo, and directly at right is Garbo as she arrived in America from Sweden in 1925. At the extreme right, you see her as a child

WILLIAM S. HART—Here you see him as he appeared on the stage about 37 years ago, long before he became a western movie star

SYLVIA SIDNEY AT 15 — It was at that age that she appeared in her first New York play, "Brunella." In those days one of her favorite tricks was to throw her hip out of joint while talking to someone. Once she did it during rehearsal, couldn't get it back, and went through the entire rehearsal that way. She is 24 years old

AT LEFT—The three Bennett sisters when they were children. Left to right: Constance, Joan and Barbara. Connie is 29, has been in pictures 10 years, married three times, is tops in box office star. Her salary is $7,000 weekly. Joan is 24 and is also a movie star

LEWIS STONE BEGAN SCREEN CAREER IN 1919—Here you see him as he appeared in a 1920 film. He is now 54, and has been married three times. Polished and talented, he is one of Hollywood's consistently good actors

Always a Dancer

At left, as she created a new dance — the "Lindbergh Hop" — in honor of Lindy's flight to Paris. At right, Joan poses for another publicity picture.

MARGUERITE CLARK WAS LEADER IN 1915—She was then the screen's outstanding feminine star, and this scene is from "The Goose Girl." Monroe Salisbury appears with her. Miss Clark is now 57, the wife of Millionaire Harry Palmerston-Williams, New Orleans, and she spends most of her time doing charity work. Miss Clark's big opportunity to become a drama star came in Des Moines about 30 years ago. She was playing with DeWolf Hopper in a musical comedy, and visited backstage at a dramatic road show which also was playing in Des Moines. The manager of the company saw her, and put her under contract. She won stage fame with that company, and later went to the screen.
